Elia wins approval of liquor license

Wilmington selectmen Monday night voted in favor of allowing a transfer of a liquor license from Frank Griffin's Church Street Hardware Store to Michael Elia.

The approval lands a second license in the Elia family. John Elia, Mike's brother, owns a liquor license as well.

The new liquor store is to be located on Lowell Street, next to the Tri-Town Mobil station. Mike Elia lives nearby on West Street.

The hearing for the transfer attracted about 10 persons most of them neighbors of the proposed location of the store. Many of them lived in the Suncrest Acres subdivision, about a quarter of a mile away. The actual site has no residences abutting except to the rear, on Westdale Avenue.

In the words of Selectman James Miceli, though, the action at the hearing was nothing in relation to what went on behind the scenes.

First and foremost, there was a matter of back taxes owned by the Elia family. Monday morning, more than $17,000 in back taxes were paid.

Other liquor store owners were also a factor. One man present at the hearing is an employee of one of the other liquor stores in town. Nothing was said in the hearing in behalf of any other liquor store owner though.

The transfer of the license marks the third license to be transferred away from Wilmington Square in recent years. John Lucci bought a license from A. Melville Woodside, owner of the now closed Wilmington Center Pharmacy. That license now covers East Gate Liquors, located within a quarter mile of the site for Elia's new store.

The second license to leave the square was that of William Altman, who operated Little Giant Liquors. That license was sold to John Elia, who now sells liquor in his North Wilmington grocery store.

The sale of Griffin's license leaves no package stores in Wilmington Square. Griffin has said that he intends to continue operating his hardware business. His building will be among those taken if Wilmington Square is ever rebuilt, as is proposed with the reconstruction of Route 129.

Attorney Simon Cutter appeared before the board to handle the transfer. He reviewed the situation of licenses recently having been transferred, and said that the competition had ruined Griffin's business.

Cutter acknowledged that there was a traffic problem in the area for which the store was proposed. He said that the traffic is generated by industry, and that traffic from the liquor store would not be an added problem.

Cutter said that Griffin had never objected when the other licenses in town were transferred.

Chairman George Boylen said that he felt that if the liquor store is a success, it will create havoc in the neighborhood. Boylen is a resident of Suncrest Acres subdivision.

John Doane of Suncrest Avenue pointed out that a liquor store as close to Route 93 as the proposed store would attract people off the highway on their way home from work or from the track. He said that no other exit from the highway had a liquor store that close.

Elizabeth Anderson objected to the transfer, saying that there would be two package stores within two minutes of her front door. She said that she was tired of encroaching businesses in the area, and if the area was to be commercial, then "let's rezone the whole area."

Cutter said that if the business would be as good as the predictions being made at the meeting, he would have bought the license himself.

Selectman Aldo Cairra asked if the town could buy the license, and pay Griffin a fair price. Cutter said that he thought that if there was a license, that it had to be issued.

Miceli said that it would take town meeting approval for such an expenditure.

Selectman Dan Gillis then spoke, reviewing some of the rezoning that had occurred in East Wilmington. He then spoke on the traffic problem at the intersection of West and Lowell Street, saying that he wanted it taken care of. He blamed the state for lack of action on the problem.

Good times at the tavern

An open house at the Harnden Tavern on Sunday afternoon centered around the colonial music provided by a group of women, playing recorders, violin and guitar. The musicians included Peggy Foye, Judy Rachdorf, Jarlene Rytli, Vi Taylor and Carol Prasad.

Gillis then voiced his approval of the transfer, pointing out that the land for the proposed liquor store was zoned for business, and should be used for just that. "I don't care where it (the package store) goes, so long as it doesn't go between houses. I'll go for it."

Selectman Jim Banda then spoke, referring to Cairra's proposal to have the town buy the license. He said that it was up to the town to issue the license.

He also voiced approval of the site, saying "I can't think of a spot that is more ideal." He said that it is separated from the rest of town, on the way to Reading.

Bob Doucette of Ledgewood Road said that everyone agreed that there is just too much traffic at the intersection. "To get out there, you have to take your life in your hands," he said.

Chairman Boylen said that with the talk of a cloverleaf (proposed for the intersection of Routes 93 and 129) the store would be a problem. And the problem wouldn't be the state's, it would be the problem of the selectmen.

Boylen said he couldn't think of a site that would be less ideal.

The vote for the transfer was three to two with Gillis, Banda and Miceli voting for and Boylen and Cairra against.

Taste test

The food served at the Harnden Tavern on Sunday afternoon received a critical taste from Steve O'Brien, president of the Friends of the Harnden Tavern. Waiting his approval is Melinda Murphy, a member of the board of trustees of the Friends, and secretary of the Wilmington Historical Commission.

Mental health services for Wilmington

The State last year revised the boundaries of its mental health and retardation areas.

From now on, community mental health needs will be met in Wilmington by the Mystic Valley Mental Health Center, a comprehensive community mental health center.

This means that Mystic Valley provides outpatient care, day treatment, emergency and intermediate care, mental retardation services, consultation and education to community agencies and research and evaluation.

Among the consultation and education programs, Mystic Valley provides services for the elderly, services for children, alcoholism services, rape information and treatment services, services for drug abuse, volunteer services, service to the police and courts, and program development. The mental retardation programs include direct clinical services, an early intervention program for children from birth to age three, a clinical nursery school, and a work activity center for retarded adults. Mystic Valley has a halfway house for adolescent girls. Of further interest is an early intervention program in mental health for very young children at high emotional risk.

The director of the Mystic Valley Mental Health Center is Morton B. Newman, M.D. who received his A.B. degree, magna cum laude, from Harvard College in 1952, and his M.D. degree from Boston University School of Medicine in 1956.

For the time being, Wilmington citizens will be seen at Mystic Valley branch offices in Lexington or Winchester, whichever is most convenient. Soon plans will be formulated with the Wilmington Board of Health to find physical space for outpatient services in Wilmington. Mystic Valley professional staff have already met with the Wilmington Board of Health, Selectmen and Town Manager.

Recently Dr. Harold Homefield, director of pupil personnel for the Wilmington schools held an informational meeting in his office with Dr. George Eisenberg, high school principal; Harriet Allen, school psychologist; Cleo Fredette, director of special education; Ernest Romano, Wilmington director of public health, and Muriel Weckstein, director of consultation and education at the Mystic Valley Mental Health Center. Meetings will continue with the Board of Health, School Department, and other town officials to effect a smooth transition. Ernest Romano and Board Member James Durkee have toured some of Mystic Valley's facilities in Lexington, Arlington and Winchester.

As plans for a Wilmington branch office progress and more services are available in the town, Mystic Valley professionals will coordinate with the Council on Aging in Wilmington, the police, hospitals, the fire department, court officials and other agencies in the town to let them know what services Mystic Valley provides. As these meetings progress, local officials and agencies will help Mystic Valley to effectively meet the mental health needs of the citizens of Wilmington.

Wilmington residents seeking to contact the Mystic Valley Mental Health Center should use the Wilmington number 657-4044, reaching the Winchester office.

Jim Banda candidate for re-election

Attorney James F. Banda has announced his candidacy for re-election to the Wilmington Board of Selectmen in the coming Saturday, March 5th Town Election.

Mr. Banda's knowledge of municipal affairs, local and Federal laws make him an exceptionally well qualified candidate for re-election to the Board of Selectmen.

Wilmington Family Counseling Service

The Wilmington Family Counseling Service's recent client evaluation indicates that the overwhelming majority of clients are satisfied with the service they have received.

The agency has a policy of periodic evaluation by clients in order to assess the quality of mental health services being provided. This year the questionnaire was mailed to 121 client families who received service from April 1975 through August 1976. Of these 121 questionnaires, 20 per cent were returned completed.

The service was rated as helpful by 91 per cent of the clients returning questionnaires. The staff was seen as sincerely interested and genuinely trying to be helpful by 90 per cent of the clients responding to the questionnaire. In assessing whether or not their lives had improved since first seeking counseling, 78 per cent reported they had; nine per cent were undecided and 13 per cent responded no. Improvement or lack of it is not directly attributable to the service provided by the Wilmington Family Counseling Service, but the results seem to indicate that families experiencing problems who seek help from the agency do resolve their difficulties in the substantial majority of cases.

As a further assessment of the acceptance of the Wilmington Family Counseling Service's mental health role in the community, clients were asked if they would refer their friends to the service; 96 per cent responded that they would recommend the agency to their friends. They also indicated that they would return for further counseling if they felt in need of it. Only four per cent said they would not return - 87 per cent said they would return and nine per cent were undecided.

The results of this survey duplicate the two previous evaluations and seem to confirm that clients receiving service from the Wilmington Family Counseling Service since 1969 almost unanimously have endorsed the agency as a helpful source of mental health services.

Wilmington's Tucker provides relief

James Tucker of Wilmington, a freshman at Gallaudet College, the world's most accredited liberal arts college for deaf students, is one of the leading subs on the Bison basketball team. Jamie has appeared in the first six games so far, but on a limited basis. At 5'-10", he is one of the backup guards.

Head coach Hubert Anderson said he liked what he saw when tryouts were held in the fall. "Jamie showed a lot of hustle and potential to be a good shooter and ball handler," commented Anderson. Anderson believes in a fast moving team and Jamie fits in perfectly.

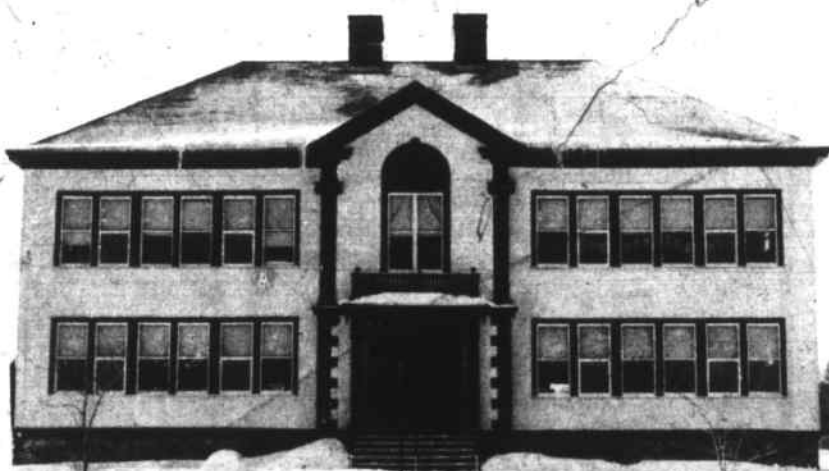

Although he has seen limited action, Jamie is averaging a little better than six points per game. Defensively, he is better than average and this has impressed Anderson greatly. With a little more experience and time, Jamie should move up a notch or two.

The team is currently sporting a 3-3 record with 16 games left to play and the outlook is good. Last year, the team compiled a dismal 4-20 record, but the way the Bison cagers have been playing this season it is almost certain they will improve and could finish the season with a respectable won-lost record.

"Overall, I am pleased with the way Jamie and the rest of the team have been playing and I am confident they will give it all they've got," said Anderson.

Jamie, who graduated from the Austine School for the Deaf, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Tucker of Shady Lane Drive, Wilmington.

Whitefield to close

The Whitefield School in North Wilmington is now in its final year as a school. The School Committee has announced that it will not re-open next year. It is being offered to other departments in town, on a one-year trial basis, said Superintendent of Schools Walter Pierce. One possible use is for a Wilmington facility for the Mystic Valley Mental Health Center.

New services assist elderly

The Minuteman Home Care Corporation (MHCC) is now providing four different services for senior citizens in Wilmington and other services are in the planning phase. At a meeting attended by over 40 senior citizens at the Wilmington Council on Aging on Monday, Dec. 30, Nema Miller, the Council's representative on the Minuteman Home Care Corporation Board of Directors, said that "the goal of MHCC is to help older people remain in their homes. That's what these services are all about."

Four services now being offered are: information and referral, case management, homemaker and chore services. Merri Lee Johnson, case manager at MHCC, told how senior citizens can obtain services: "An older person may call Minuteman Home Care, or a friend, relative, or professional agency may refer the person to our office (phone numbers listed below). For example, let's say that the older person calls us."

"A staff person will speak with the caller about his or her situation. If it appears that MHCC can meet the person's needs, the staff person will take down the initial information and a case manager will call back the client to arrange a home visit."

After a home visit, the case manager may assist the older person in getting homemaker services, which include food shopping, personal errands, laundry, light housekeeping and meal preparation, or chore services, which include heavy household cleaning, minor home repairs and yard work. Minuteman Home Care contracts with other agencies to provide homemaker and chore services.

"If MHCC cannot meet the person's needs, s/he will be referred to an agency which can be of assistance. All referrals are followed up to be sure that the older person's needs are met."

Eligibility
Persons aged 60 and over are eligible for services. Most of the funding for home care services comes from Title XX of the Social Security Act, which allows MHCC to serve individuals with gross monthly incomes of up to $400, and couples who earn up to $800 per month, without a fee. Older persons with incomes above these amounts are also encouraged to apply. Title III of the Older Americans Act provides a limited amount of money to serve persons whose incomes are over Title XX limits. Assets are not considered in determining eligibility.

Elderly govern
Joh Pynoos, executive director of the agency, explained that MHCC is one of 27 home care corporations statewide which operate under the guidance of the State Department of Elder Affairs. MHCC is governed by a board of directors representing its member communities.

Drawn from Councils on Aging and other citizen groups more than half the board members are 60 years or older. The 16 towns served include Acton, Arlington, Bedford, Buxton, Burlington, Carlisle, Concord, Harvard, Lexington, Lincoln, Littleton, Maynard, Stow, Wilmington, Winchester and Woburn. All towns which contribute their local share to the corporation have a vote at the monthly board meeting.

The MHCC office is located at 1241 Massachusetts Avenue, Arlington. Clients in Wilmington may call collect 648-2410.

Many Wilmington citizens have questioned the wisdom of having the town's tennis courts, ankle deep in water or knee deep in snow glaring with light every evening until nine o'clock. Tsar had a trip

Tsar is a beautiful white Samoyed, and just to make things clear, being a Samoyed means he is a dog. A couple of weeks ago Tsar disappeared, and Sandy, his bos, put an ad in the Town Crier.

Sandy says she was amazed at the response. Everyone was looking for Tsar, and she got all kinds of messages for which she was very thankful. Meanwhile Tsar had ended up in Somerville.

It seems he got over onto Hopkins Street, Wilmington, which was not too far from his home, and there, with no collar, some friends decided he needed a home. They took him home to Somerville.

Then, when Sandy put the ad in the paper some Hopkins Street people called on Somerville friends, and Tsar returned. He is now a little more sophisticated, having been to the big city, but just as beautiful as ever.

Limit spending?

The president of the Massachusetts Senate, Kevin B. Harrington, has suggested that the state may have to limit the spending of the local municipalities. It was a most interesting observation.

Currently the Wilmington Finance Committee is examining the budget for the coming year. The budget is to be about $10 million.

Nearly eight million is for schools and school maintenance. Mr. Harrington probably knows that the school committee in any community is immune from local control. Perhaps the state senate can do something toward control, on this point.

About one million is for supplies, for such things as police cruisers and materials for the highways.

Three members of the Finance Committee, Tom Casey, Arthur Spears and Chris Bachman, have added up what they have to work on. It is about half a million - approximately three per cent of the coming budget.

Nearly everything that the coming Town Meeting will vote on has already been budgeted by state law, with no reductions by the local voters.

The Finance Committee, of course, would be happy to listen to any recommendations the senator has to make on how to cut that three per cent - no gas for police cruisers for instance.

Fair play needed

Currently, it is proposed to construct a one thousand apartment condominium in North Wilmington, exclusively for elderly persons. This would be constructed in an old gravel pit, a place that has provided a number of political problems in the past dozen years.

Interestingly, even before the proposal was heard there was already a political reaction. It seems the proponent is not to get an opportunity to be heard.

If erected this condominium, could be paying more taxes than Avco, the firm who pays more taxes than any other in Wilmington. It would mean several dollars off the tax rate for every Wilmington taxpayer.

In the interests of the people of Wilmington, in the interest of fair play, there should be an opportunity for the proponent to tell what is being planned before he is cut down.

Maybe everything is as terrible as some would want to believe, but fair play obviously is needed.

$30,000 salaries

Selectman Gillis of Wilmington has been making noises recently about the $30,000 salary paid to the Town Manager.

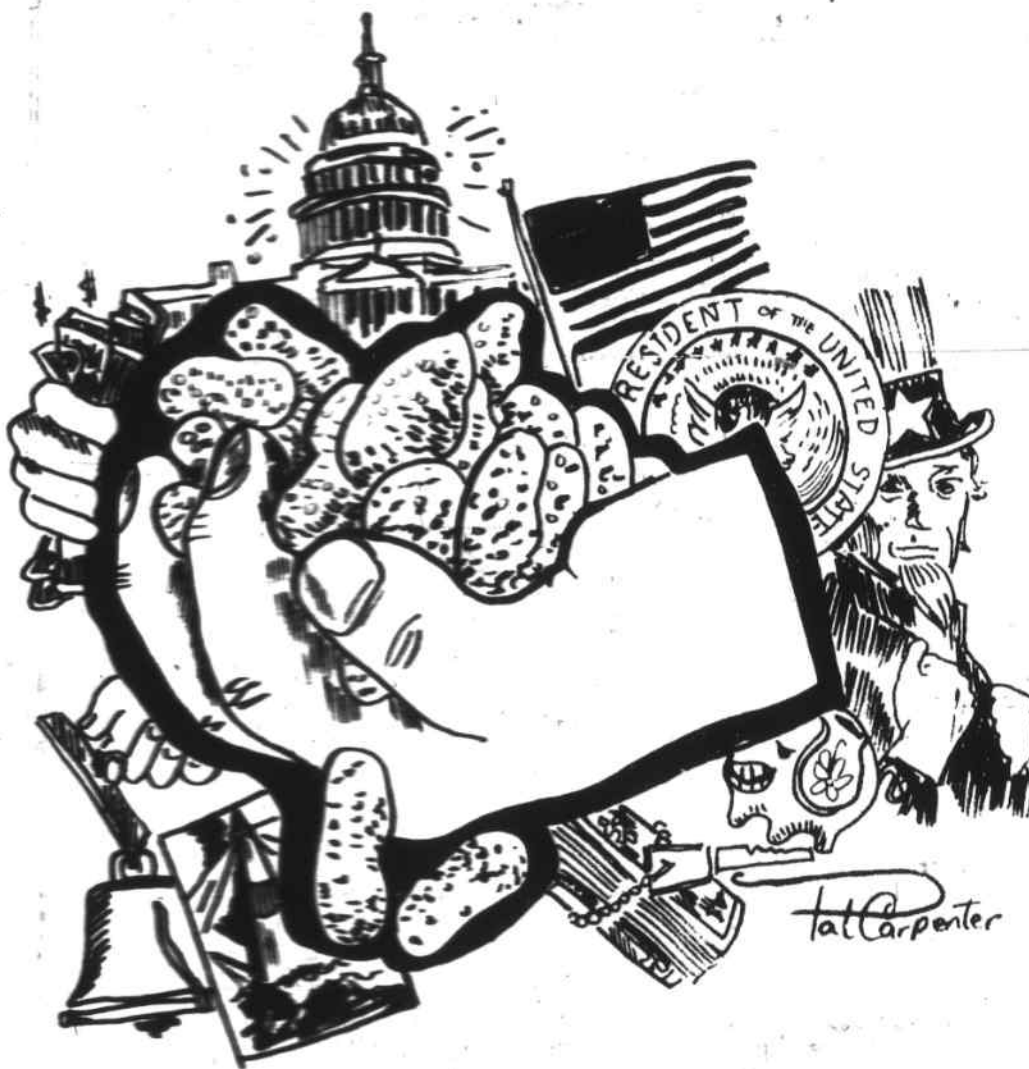

It is not an easy thing to pay taxes in a town where officials are being paid twice and three times as much as the taxpayer - or more.

There is a point to be discussed.

There are five Wilmington officials who are paid $30,000 or more a year.

The Town Manager is only one of those five, and his pay is not the highest, either. It is the only one which is set, though, by the selectmen.

The fire chief and the police chief have their salaries set by vote of the Massachusetts Legislature and the superintendent of schools and the assistant superintendent have their set by the school committee.

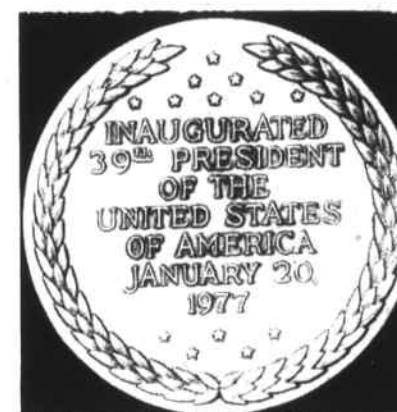

A chicken in every pot,

A car in every garage, and a peanut on every table!

Jimmy Carter Medallions

Jimmy Carter medallions, honoring the incoming president of the United States, have been designed by Tewksbury's resident sculptor, Mico Kaufman. This year, however, Mr. Kaufman's work is not an official part of the inauguration.

Mr. Kaufman has also designed portrait medallions of the incoming vice president, Walter F. Mondale. The medallions are made by the Medallie Art Company, of Danbury, Connecticut.

Going to Hawaii? Your group has a chance to admire Waimea Canyon and Kilauea Valley. Once in Hawaii, it is possible to do practically anything your heart needs. One of Kauai's more impressive waterfalls is located on the island of Kauai, on the Waialeale River. The river tumbles over a fifty foot cliff into a mist-shrouded pool in a setting of lush tropical trees. It is a fact that Hawaiian waters used to impress their girl friends by jumping over the falls. It is folk knowledge like this, plus the scenery, the relaxation, the good food and good shopping that makes a trip to Hawaii so memorable.

It's easy to make your reservations for a trip to Hawaii by calling us at TRAVEL AT EASE, 378 Middlesex Ave., Wilmington, Rte. 62, 657-4121 or 942-0494. Rebecca Suggs is married Miss Rebecca Lynne Suggs and Dennis Carlton Dixon were united in marriage in a candlelight ceremony Saturday, November 17 at 7 p.m. in St. Paul's United Methodist Church in North Carolina with the Rev. Clarence Garner and the Rev. Frank Meacham officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angus W. Suggs of 401 W. Blue St., St. Pauls, N.C., formerly of Wilmington. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Dixon of Wilson, N.C. Music for the wedding included the Theme from Love Story, Wedding Song, We've Only Just Begun, You'll Never Walk Alone Again, and the Lord's Prayer.

The bride wore her mother's wedding of traditional ivory satin with Brussels lace applique. The sweetheart neckline was adorned with lace as were the cathedral sleeves. Her headpiece was fashioned of ivory satin Brussels lace applique and pearls. She wore a finger tip ivory veil and carried a floral arrangement of ivory sweetheart roses, stephanotis, miniature carnations, baby's breath and ivy.

Ann Marie Breakey, a friend of the bride from Wilmington served as maid of honor. She wore a gown of brown guinea, styled with a cowl neckline and long sleeves and carried a lighted candle with a flower ring of greenery and sweetheart roses.

Cheryl Lawler, a friend of the bride from Wilmington and Barbara Suggs, sister of the bride from St. Pauls, N.C. were the bridesmaids. They wore gowns of peach and coral guinea styled identically like that worn by the maid of honor.

Rob Bryn and Adam Bryn, nephews of the bride from Raleigh, N.C. were ring bearers.

Tanya and Trisha Suggs, sisters of the bride, circulated rice bags and tiny scrolls.

Carlton Dixon of N.C., father of the groom served his son as best man while ushering duties were in charge of Paul Akagi, a friend of the couple from Oakland, California and Wilton Suggs, brother of the bride.

The new Mrs. Dixon wore a floral print shirt-waist styled dress of polished garbadeine and a corsage of ivory sweetheart roses, stephanotis, and baby's breath for her going-away outfit. The couple spent a honeymoon in Florida and plan to make their home at 3800-79 Stacy Brook North Raleigh, N.C.

Sweetheart Plastics has a new game

Sweetheart Plastics, Wilmington manufacturing firm, is producing a new game called Sweetheart Superstar. Basically, it is a contest for the employees, but it does have a point or two of interest. All Sweetheart employees are getting cards similar to those purchased in bingo games. There are all sorts of reasons why an employee can have a star pasted into place, and five stars in a row wins a prize.

Remember, years ago, there were stars given out for perfect attendance in Sunday School? Stars will be given out, for the same reason, at Sweetheart - orange, dark red, or gold.

Stars will be given out for sales, for suggestions, for car-pools, for many things, including personally wishing your supervisor a Happy Valentine's Day, on St. Valentine's Day.

It seems there will be some busy supervisors, on that day. There are also stars to be won by doing volunteer community work. If the reader happens to see someone helping an old lady across the street - that's no Boy Scout - that's a Sweetheart Plastics employee trying to earn a gold star!

Home from Florida

Twelve hours before this picture was taken Fay DeAvignon of Church Street, Wilmington was in Florida.

They needed an object lesson

The past two weeks will go down in the history books as being The Great Ice Age of 1977. Eastern Massachusetts is particularly hard hit. The zero temperatures extended as far south as Atlanta, Ga.

The blow came on January 10. There had been two snowstorms, one with 14 inches and one with 17. Then, on the tenth, there was 6 inches followed by two inches of rain.

The result in many places was disaster. Tewksbury took two blows - buildings collapsed at Shear Sex and Chelmsford Fuel.

There is no getting rid of the solid ice on the roads. Every town is afflicted. Boston, according to the dailies, has a real problem. The railroad to Bedford is shut down because of the ice.

Tewksbury was the only town to have open schools, Wednesday through Friday. Wilmington opened up on Thursday, but then closed again. Andover, Billerica, Woburn and other places just stayed closed.

Some young people had a wonderful time helping their neighbors clear ice and snow from roofs and gutters. One of the best stories involves 13-year-old Janet Carlson of Andover Street, Wilmington.

Janet, it is reported, was just like a mountain goat. The biggest story came from Woburn. That was where the Woburn Boladrome collapsed. There were widespread pictures on TV. It was quite spectacular. Across the street is the Woburn Times building, and two young men were sent up to the roof, to clear off the snow. Somehow they felt they were being imposed upon - why should somebody want to shovel snow off a roof?

So they were grumbling as they moved that snow.

Then there was a noise across the street, and right before their eyes they watched the Woburn Boladrome crumble, from the weight of excess snow.

They had had their object lesson, right then and there.

Mr. & Mrs. Gosse celebrate fiftieth

The fiftieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Gosse of Pleasant Rd., Wilmington was celebrated in their home on January 14 with all members of the family present to assist. The couple was married in Somerville on January 14, 1927. They lived in that city for many years, where he was employed as a carpenter. They moved to Wilmington 12 years ago. Three of the children are Wilmington residents, Robert Gosse, Bertha Osterhaven and Evelyn Leavitt. The fourth, Mrs. Dorothy Crawford, lives in Weymouth. There are seven grandchildren.

St. Luke the physician

The January 12 Wilmington Town Crier had a story of Dr. Miriam Hosmer, former Wilmington physician. Stories can be told of her uncle, the late Dr. Gaius Harmon, of whom nothing but good can be told.

Dr. Harmon will be remembered by some, at least. He was born in the Congregational Parsonage in Wilmington. His father was the minister, the late Rev. Elijah Harmon, in the days preceding the Spanish-American War.

Dr. Harmon became a Doctor of Public Health, one of the first 15 in the United States, and possibly in the world. One class and one class only was sponsored by both Harvard University and MIT, and the presidents of both universities signed the diplomas. No other diplomas were ever signed by both presidents.

After a lifetime of teaching Dr. Harmon returned to Wilmington and retirement about 25 years ago. He was soon just as busy as ever. He taught Sunday School, and was in on the organization of the first Board of Public Health. He was the first chairman.

On infrequent occasions he conducted Bible studies, in the Congregational Church, and the one that no one who knew of ever forgot was his class on the Gospel according to St. Luke.

A learned physician discussing the events of the New Testament, as related by another physician - St. Luke.

Mike Esposito and friends

Mike Esposito, former football star of Wilmington High and BC, now of the Atlanta Falcons, shown with the presidents of the Wilmington Lions, the Kiwanis and Rotary, Monday night. It was a joint meeting at the Wilmington K of C Hall, with the Wilmington football squad as guests of all three clubs.

A different game

Doc Soper prepares the Fine Pot, as Rotarian Al O'Connors prepares his assault on the pocketbooks of the 153 guests in the K of C Hall.

Both men agreed that the money raising event was a fine time.

Squirt A's get act together

Steve Sledz scored the game winner with two minutes to go in the final period, giving the Tewksbury Squirt A's a 4-2 victory over Danvers Saturday afternoon at Wilmington.

Tewksbury trailed 2-0 as Danvers launched two early opening period markers. Late in the first Eddie Della Piana spotted the first T goal on nice passing plays by Tony Lamin and Danny Small.

Jackie Fowler scored the game-tying goal in the second frame assisted by Brian Keaney executing a goal two on one passing play.

Sledz tally was set up by Tony Lamin and Tim Kelly. Goalie Steve Duncan registered the win playing his usual superb game turning away at least six sure goals. Eddie Kinnella, Dana Tower, Tim Kelly and Danny Small defensively held their opposition in check.

Jackie Fowler, Ed Della Piana, Russ Mann, Tim Kelly and Danny Small preserved the win during those final two minutes of play killing off any attempt of Danvers at retaliating.

The Squirt A's lost a 4-2 decision to Chelmsford last Thursday night in non-league action.

Jackie Fowler scored both goals with assists to Craig LeDuc.

Midget B's The Tewksbury Midget B's won the first game in a scrimmage since reorganizing recently, dropping Burlington 5-3 Saturday night.

Richard Boyle scored twice while teammates Steve Doyle, Russ Morris and Roger Vance added a goal apiece. Goalie John Gonzalez took honors in nets.

The Midget B's had their league games at Tyngsboro cancelled last Monday because of inclement weather.

Canadians Jolt North Stars Bruce Cabral scored two third period goals and assisted on another giving the Canadians a 9-6 victory over the North Stars Sunday in Tewksbury Pee Wee Intramural action.

Tommy Burns had a fabulous morning depositing five goals for the North Stars. Jim Doherty added another but all toward a losing cause.

The first period was busy with both teams swapping three goals.

Fred Browne assisted gave the Canadians their first boardlighter and his first two goals. Jeff Mazzone unassisted scored his first of two goals. Browne closed first period play lighting the lamp on a Mazzone assist.

Kevin Mally notched a second period marker assisted by Bruce Cabral and Mazzone scored assisted by Steve DeLorenzo. Mally unassisted tallied his second goal of the game closing second period play.

Bruce Cabral pocketed the game winner in the final period on a Mally assist and went on to unassisted score some insurance. Mally unassisted scored his hat trick goal.

Goaltender Gary Izcopucci registered the win taking 14 shots on net aided by the defense of Kevin Comfort, Steve DeLorenzo, Danny Silk and Billy Kolek.

Star goalie Jimmy Angelo played a super game despite the loss robbing Ken Anderson a few times.
